I'm writing to comment on the proposed regulation above.

There are people who abuse everything in life, but they are not the majority. The thing that made this country great was that people were given the OPPORTUNITY to work at what they thought would benefit their families and would therefore benefit all of society in the process. Suppose Edison wasn't allowed to experiment with electricity for his own protection.

Options were created to both gamble with, or to protect investments. Those of us who use options to protect and to grow our portfolios safely should have the same ability that professional traders do.

Thank you for your consideration.
